Summary of findings

Overall summary

The Glen is a residential nursing home situated within the Dore area of Sheffield. The home is a converted house with a purpose built extension. The home provides accommodation, personal care and nursing care for older people and people living with dementia. At the time of our inspection there were 14 people using the service.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The home had clear guidance, policies and processes to help minimise the risk of an outbreak and manage any which occurred.

The service was accessing the government testing scheme.

The service was working with the local authority infection control team and other health professionals to ensure people's needs were met.

Cleaning schedules had been increased during the outbreak, to ensure high contact areas, such as door handles, light switches and appliances were regularly cleaned during the day.

Staff had received specific training in managing the risk of the COVID-19 pandemic and how to safely use and dispose of personal protective equipment (PPE).

The registered manager was open and pro-active in sharing information with friends and family, so they understood decisions around visiting and restrictions.

Staff supported people to stay in contact with relatives and friends via phone and video calling.

Further information is in the detailed findings below.

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of coronavirus, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control practice was safe, and the service was compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place.

This inspection took place on 1 December 2020 and was announced.
