Summary of findings

Overall summary

Passmonds House is a residential care home providing accommodation for people who require personal care. The service can support up to 33 people. There were 29 people living at the home at the time of the inspection.

We found the following examples of good practice.

The home appeared clean and uncluttered, and an increased cleaning schedule was in place, to minimise the chance of cross infection.

The home was allowing visitors in line with guidance. All visitors' temperatures were taken to help screen people for COVID-19. Appropriate PPE was being used, and staff, residents and visitors also took part in routine COVID-19 testing. People were supported to maintain regular contact with relatives through video calls and telephone calls.

All staff had been fully vaccinated in line with current government guidance.

Staff spoke positively about the service and management and had no concerns. Comments included, "Yes, the manager has been really good. She is very friendly and approachable," and "Yes, the manager is good, she is strict with PPE and stuff, she helps out a lot though."

Detailed findings

Background to this inspection

We carried out this inspection under Section 60 of the Health and Social Care Act 2008 as part of our regulatory functions. This inspection was planned to check whether the provider is meeting the legal requirements and regulations associated with the Health and Social Care Act 2008.

As part of CQC's response to care homes with outbreaks of COVID-19, we are conducting reviews to ensure that the Infection Prevention and Control (IPC) practice is safe and that services are compliant with IPC measures. This was a targeted inspection looking at the IPC practices the provider has in place. We also asked the provider about any staffing pressures the service was experiencing and whether this was having an impact on the service.

This inspection took place on 18 January 2022 and was announced. We gave the service 24 hours' notice of the inspection.
